INAUGURAL ISSUE OF THE JOURNAL OF DENTAL HUMANITIES

The time has arrived for a journal dedicated to exploring the connection between the profession of dentistry, the humanities, and the social sciences.

Mission Statement

The Journal of Dental Humanities is dedicated to presenting thought provoking material connecting dentistry to the humanities and the social sciences. The journal places a priority on publishing quality material that supports the objective of dental professionals who seek to provide a patient-centered approach to health care. The mission purpose of the Journal of Dental Humanities aligns with the position that a functional democracy requires ethical, highly skilled professionals who are engaged, active members within their community and the larger society.

The Journal of Dental Humanities is published quarterly. All correspondence may be addressed to:

Journal of Dental Humanities
